On January 27, 2007, Robert Savoy was arrested in Lanham, MD by members of CARFTF. The Baltimore, MD Police Department (BPD) wanted Savoy for charges relating to the rape of an eight year old boy. Savoy, who recently ended an unrelated prison term, allegedly assaulted the victim multiple times during the first week of January 2007. BPD requested assistance from CARFTF investigators, who quickly acted to locate Savoy. A short time later, investigators identified Savoy's location, but also learned that he became aware of law enforcement efforts to apprehend him. Acting on this knowledge, investigators fabricated a plan designed to lure Savoy to a predetermined location in Lanham. CARFTF established surveillance at that site, observed Savoy approach, and safely took him into custody.

On January 20, 2007, Zachary Delrosario, a documented member of the Get Money Click gang, was arrested in the Bronx, NY by members of NY/NJ RFTF, who acted with critical assistance from the Technical Operations Group (TOG). Authorities wanted Delrosario for Homicide and other charges after he allegedly engaged in a gang-related killing, as well as a series of other non-fatal shootings from late 2006 through January 2007. During these incidents, Delrosario allegedly targeted members of a rival gang as part of a narcotics-related "turf war". The New York, NY Police Department made Delrosario's capture a top priority. NY/NJ RFTF investigators developed information indicating that Delrosario fled to North Carolina following the shootings, and that he later returned to the New York area. Investigators identified Delrosario's probable location, responded to that site, and established surveillance. After two hours, NY/NJ RFTF units observed Delrosario enter a vehicle for hire. Investigators moved in, conducted a felony traffic stop on the vehicle, and safely took Delrosario into custody. Authorities have currently charged Delrosario with Homicide, Attempted Murder, and Armed Robbery. In the near future, authorities also plan to file charges against Delrosario in relation to three previous unrelated killings and seven shooting incidents occurring over the previous two years.
